

About the Authors

Johannah Bernstein is an international environmental lawyer with her own consulting practice based in Brussels and Montreal. She advises national governments, UN organisations and civil society organisations on a wide range of global sustainability issues. She is one of the principal authors of the IES Inventory on Environment and Security Policies and Practices.

Jeffrey S. Behr is co-founder and CEO of the Center for Environmental Diplomacy in Washington, DC. CED programmes empower youth and communities to protect their environment and public health. He holds a B.S. in chemistry from Birmingham-Southern College and a M.S. in environmental engineering from Tokyo University. He has advised corporations, state and national governments on financing environment and development programmes.

Alexander Carius is Director of Adelphi Research and Adelphi Consult, Berlin based think-tanks for environment, development and foreign policy. He is a member of the UN Environment Programme's Environment and Conflict Prevention Initiative and member of the German Federal Government's Advisory Board on "Civilian Crisis Prevention"

Geoffrey D. Dabelko is Director of the Environmental Change and Security Program at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, DC. He is a member of the UN Environment Programme's Environment and Conflict Prevention Initiative and co-vice chair of the International Human Dimensions Program on Global Environmental Change.

Moira Feil is a Research Fellow with Adelphi Research, a Berlin based think-tank for environment, development and foreign policy, and a Research Fellow with the Peace Research Institute Frankfurt. Her main research interests are natural resource links to security and private sector engagement in conflict zones.

Antonio L. Fernandez is Principal Scientist at the Earthquakes and Megacities Initiative (EMI), an international scientific non-profit organization based in Quezon City in Metro Manila, Philippines. At the time of this writing, he was a member of the International Disaster Reduction Research Team of the Earthquake Disaster Mitigation Research Center in Japan, where he was based over the last 20 years.

Jiří Hlaváček is Director, Department of Environmental Policy and Multilateral Relations, Ministry of Environment of the Czech Republic.

Ronald A. Kingham is co-founder and Programme Director of the Institute for Environmental Security. He is also co-founder and Director of the Stichting Environment & Development Resource, former European Co-ordinator for the Transatlantic Environment Dialogue and former Executive Director of the International Coalition for Development Action. He has been a consultant in a number of NGO, EU, UN and other projects including as temporary Senior Editor in the Global Scenarios project of Shell International in early 2004.

Nick Mabey is founding director of E3G (Third Generation Environmentalism). He was a senior policy advisor in the UK Prime Ministers Strategy Unit from 2002-2005, where among other roles he was a team leader on the Countries at Risk of Instability Programme.

Michael Renner is Senior Researcher and Director of the Global Security Project at the Worldwatch Institute in Washington, DC. Worldwatch is a private research and public policy organisation focusing on global issues relating to environment and sustainability.

Rita Taureck is an Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) funded doctoral student at the University of Birmingham, UK, in the Department of Political Science and International Relations. She is writing her dissertation on securitisation theory, utilising the U.S. environmental security strategy from 1993-2006 as a case study.

Nasser Yassin is an Associate Fellow of the Institute for Environmental Security. He is currently a PhD candidate at the Bartlett Faculty of Built Environment at University College London. His research interests, among others, include the causes of civil conflict; environmental and human security; and cities in conflict.